Travel Soccer Player Membership Dues

Below are the membership dues for each of our 3 seasons. Compared to other clubs, our costs are relatively low. Most clubs charge significantly across the entire year with less benefits. Our motivation to keep fees relatively low is explained below.

Our Motivation

The economic impact of youth soccer costs is significant but often overlooked. It creates a paradox with clubs or leagues that promote themselves as the best but charge high fees. Costs have a bigger impact on competitiveness and player participation levels than any other factor.

Food for Thought

If the fees are high, are you really playing WITH the best players or AGAINST the best competition ?

The high cost of youth soccer creates a financial barrier that prevents many kids from playing. The reality is that a lot of families simply don't consider programs with high fees as an option. The result is a lot of good players are priced out of the market. The laws of supply and demand influence the youth soccer market just like any other market.

Supply & Demand

Clubs with high fees only have the best players that can afford to pay the high fee. A club with a low fee has access to more of the better players.

In the USA, youth soccer operates under a pay to play model. It creates a paradox that doesn't exist in Europe or South America. In those places, the better players pay nothing to play because pro soccer subsidizes the youth system. In the USA, the better players pay more than anyone else. That creates a paradox.

The Paradox

High costs limit player participation. Many clubs charge high fees and claim to have the strongest teams. Is this possible ? Do the laws of supply and demand cease to exist in youth soccer ?

Our mission as a club is to address this paradox by keeping fees low. The result is a strong youth soccer program. It's impossible for clubs to simultaneously claim they have all the best players or all the strongest teams and have high fees. The laws of supply and demand don't magically disappear for youth soccer. The more something costs, the less players participate.
